Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Adam Alaniz, who has been drawing since the third grade, graduated from the Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, California. Great works of literature, doodles, drawing as many details as he sees fit, and having animals fly through the air are just some of the elements that make up his images. His influences from Greek mythology, art history, medieval literature, science, and nature inspire Adam's images which are combined with narrative and social commentary. His illustrations have received recognition from American Illustration for his work in Germ Stories.
