Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Ben Fink is a New York City based photographer for some of the most popular food professionals of our day: Rachel Ray, Ina Garten, Bobby Flay, Rose Levy Beranbaum, Paul Deen, the Deen Brothers, the Neelys, Jacques Pepin, Carol Alt, Rick Rodgers, and Michael Symon have all entrusted Ben with their food and lifestyle photography for their many cookbooks. He is also effortlessly comfortable with celebrities who were media stars before they were cookbook authors, including Eva Longoria, Trisha Yearwood, and Teresa Giudice. He is virtually the in-house photographer for The Culinary Institute of America, and has provided the visuals for over a dozen of their beautifully photographed and intricate textbooks. His corporate client list is equally impressive, including Hellman's Mayonnaise, Eggo Waffles, American Express, Tate's Cookies, and many others. Ben's photography has graced many New York Times bestsellers and IACP and James Beard Award winners.

OVERVIEW

As a commercial photographer and exhibiting artist, Ben Fink is a master of visual harmony. Both his culinary and his landscape work blend light, texture, mood, and depth to empower and heighten the viewer's senses. Ben has photographed over one hundred cookbooks and has worked with top culinary celebrities like Jacques Pepin, Bobby Flay, Ina Garten, and Rachael Ray. Although he lives and works in NYC, Ben's culinary clients have sent him to a number of locations worldwide to photograph the connection between food and people. Ben is also an exhibiting artist in 14 fine-art galleries for his landscape work, and is rapidly gaining the attention of prominent art collectors nationwide.
