Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

My name is Luke Twyman and I work as a freelance designer in the UK.

I've had a long running passion for handmade creations, and have always been able to keep myself entertained with paper, pens and scissors.

I originally got into creative programming in 2000, when I started developing independent homemade video games as a pass-time. Later as part of my degree, I attended some crash courses on html and flash basics, and I quickly found that I was able to combine my creative programming skills with graphic creations, and put them to good use.

Since then I've mainly been working on freelance projects - primarily web design, but also graphic design and illustration, turning my hand at most things clients have requested. In between I also do contractual work with agencies, usually doing flash design, and I still like to work on a selection of personal design and illustration projects when I can fit it in.

I'm currently hoping to expand on my current skills, and work in some different fields, as well as hopefully take on some more international projects.
