Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

'A Drawing A Day' is a bi-annual project. Starting in 2014, I have made time to observe, experience and draw everyday situations from life, from the mundane to the magnificent. I upload each image to a daily blog. My aim is to record the evolution in language, technology, behaviour and fashion in a way that a camera lens is unable to see.

These drawings vary in scale, time taken to complete and materials used. From a one-minute scribble on a receipt showing the bus journey home from work; to a busy bar scene drawn onto a bottle; to London landscapes taking over an hour. The way each drawing is drawn - what they are drawn with, what they are drawn on, what they depict – tells its own unique story; all part of my unique visual narrative exploration of daily life as seen through the eyes of a young Londoner.
