Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae
I'm an animator, illustrator, video artist, and web and print designer.

In both my fine art and commercial work, I set out to tell stories that fully immerse viewers in visceral experiences.

I live and work in Brooklyn, NY.

Previous Clientele
I've worked as a lead animator on Richard Linklater's film "A Scanner Darkly," created interactive portals for NASA and developed eLearning courses for Johns Hopkins University. I've also worked for Warner Brothers, Ericsson, MTV, The Discovery Channel, Kellogg's, The History Channel, and many other corporate clients.

Summary of Qualifications
Blue Bliss is highly focused with excellent interpersonal and communication skills. Her wide range of project experience makes her very versatile with the ability to concept, design and execute graphics in many styles. Her fifteen years of successful experience as a graphic artist in a variety of disciplines include Flash animations; illustration, hand-drawn and computer graphics; art and animation for video, TV and film; 3D illustration and animation; banner ads and microsites; large format digital graphics; corporate training and e-learning graphics; painted and printed murals; theme park graphics; and portraiture. Proficient in Flash, Photoshop, Illustrator and After Effects, she also has strong hand-drawing and painting abilities.

Recently she was an assistant lead animator and team leader on the Richard Linklater feature film “A Scanner Darkly”, also creating illustrations for the movie posters and publicity stills. Since moving to NYC in 2006 she has been freelancing for numerous agencies and companies, primarily as a designer and animator. She is well organized and hard working, and able to keep on top of numerous and simultaneously happening events, meet deadlines and deal with challenging logistics, build teamwork, and work well with diverse personalities and backgrounds. Strong in creative energies, Blue is committed to giving total effort to a project from concept to completion, to ensure the attainment of outstanding results.
