Ramsey Bakhoum, formally trained in architecture, is an up-and-coming fine arts photographer based in Boston, Massachusetts. He has permanent art installations throughout Boston, New England and Europe. His background in architecture is evident in his unique style of photography which focuses on detail, material, composition, pattern, perspective, light and shadow. He was a two time finalist for the Rotch Scholarship competition. Ramsey graduated from the Boston Architectural College with a Thesis Commends Award and was the recipient of the John Worthington Ames Traveling Scholarship, which was the jumpstart to his photographic endeavors.
