Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

FIGUREGROUND is an open research platform for studying the metropolitan condition globally. We are constantly collecting data concerning the quality of life in different cities. This way we can compare cities to find potential values that can be transported to help other cities develop.

Currently our products include photography and t-shirts of cities that are part of our ongoing research on the most influential cities in the world.

Our products will also be changing as our research develops. We will try to elaborate products that represent informative values of different cities.

You can be part of our growing community by participating in our surveys, joining our social networks, or even simply by spreading the word around.
