Medical Reporter

100% Charity

I had to work this Christmas holiday, the most important day of the year for me personally. An emergency (it happens). Not only did I drive to the hospital at my inconvenience, miss dinner with my family (hey, it's a doctor's life); get a ticket (bad luck); wait for tests and paperwork; give instructions in two languages; repeat the ER doctor's exam; render treatment; stabilize the patient; remain at bed side until the symptoms resolved; fill out another round of paperwork, but I would not get paid for this work.

A doctor's views and opinions about healthcare and policy and thinking that needs to change.

Moderation and perspective will give us about eighty percent of what we need to live a full and healthy life.

Kulik, M.D. Today's Health Tip Media

Dr. Alfred D. Kulik is a board certified ophthalmologist in New York and New Jersey. While Dr. Kulik's specialty is ophthalmology, his passion is learning and sharing the information we need to lead vibrant, healthy and long lives.

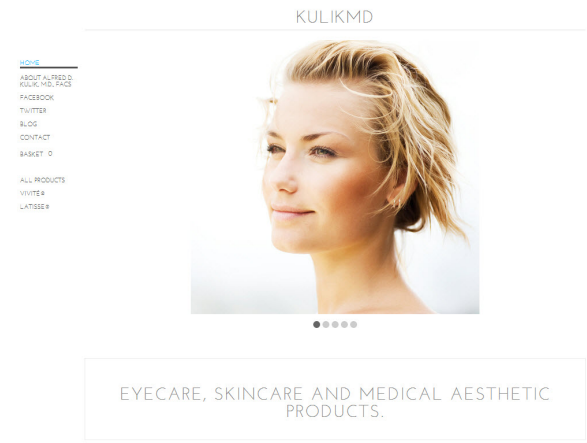

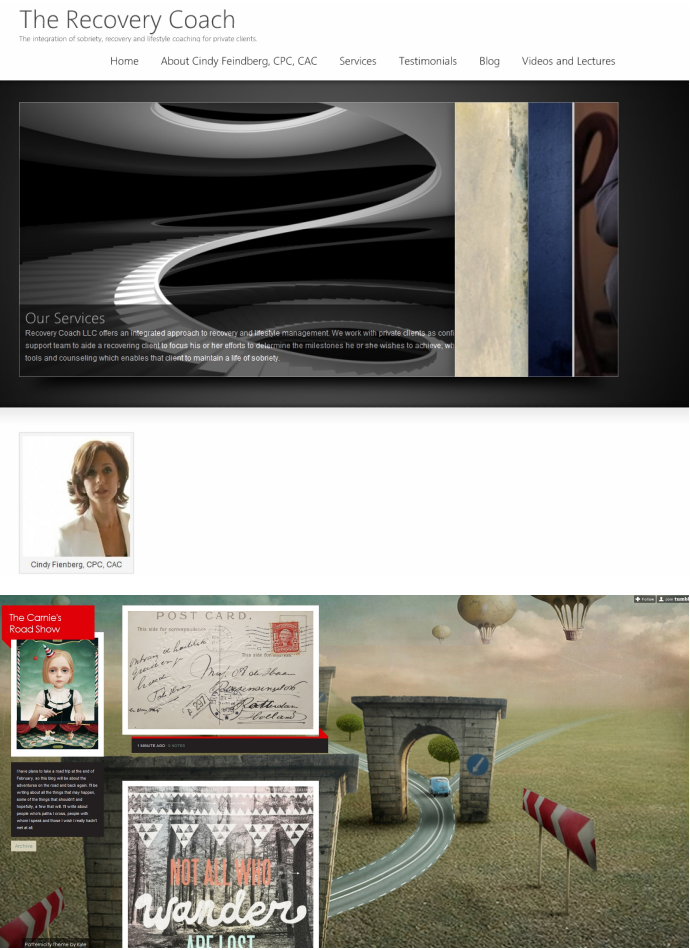

While embracing the possibilities of what advances in science and technology can provide us, Dr. Kulik believes that good medicine will always begin and end with the trust and relationship between the physician and patient.

KulikMD.com is meant to be a site that features health news, ideas, columns and questions for and from you. If you have a question for Dr. Kulik, please e-mail askdrkulik@kulikmd.com.
