Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Tieshka Smith is a Philadelphia-based photographer who makes candid images that challenge prevailing notions of otherness. Her work is a vehicle through which she explores the ways that marginalized people interact with one another and with shared but unsanctioned public spaces. It is her goal to create images that facilitate dialogue and action around a range of socioeconomic issues that impact urban communities and the people who live in them. Smith has contributed work to Certain Circuits magazine, the Mt. Airy Patch, FIN magazine and other blogs and publications. Also, her work has been exhibited in galleries and other community spaces both in Philadelphia and the New York City area, including Next City's Storefront for Urban Innovation, Eris Temple Arts and Flying Kite Media, via their On the Ground neighborhood initiative.

A Chicago native, Smith is a graduate of Northwestern University and Keller Graduate School of Management.
