Surrounding King Shongyal were the on head man with his mirror, the monkey-head man with his yardstick, and the deer-head man with his book.

destroyed most of Tibet's monasteries forty years ago. Nevertheless, the unwritten tradition of recreation and singing of Tibet's heroic epics and legends remains alive and full of beauty.

One of these great legends is the story of the judgment of the dead. In it, a man named Shoskyid tells of his visit to the
