Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Masashi Ohtsu was born in Osaka, Japan, raised in New York, and holds a BFA in Photography, from Parsons School of Design. He is the co-founder of bmm art & computer, a web design, development, and consulting company founded in 1994. His background includes experience in photography, video, design, audio, and the fine arts. Masashi's work has been featured in art exhibitions, site specific installations, and has been published domestically and abroad.

Masashi has worked on a number of documentary film projects, such as The Black Crowes: Cabin Fever, an innovative profile of the highly regarded music group. He is also spearheading an independent music label, buddhafunk, which, to date, has released Wet Pinkey and A Soundtrack to an Imaginary Film.
