Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae
Italian photographer Monia Tartarini specializes in environmental and studio portraiture. With content ranging from serene, natural landscapes to highly evocative human portrayals, all of her photographs maintain a painterly aesthetic.
Her masterful technique allows her to imbue the photos with dramatic light and shades. While ethereal light pervades some of her landscapes, a dramatic chiaroscuro permeates her human figures.
Having traveled widely in search of a “universal sense of art,” Tartarini’s body of work is rich with cultural, regional and art historical references.
The theatricality of the Italian Baroque is a great inspiration for her work, as is the quietude of American realism from the mid-20th century.
Many of her works meticulously straddle the line between expressive photojournalism and fine art photography.
A self-taught photographer, after college Tartarini took a trip around the world, with the purpose of enhancing her skills and developing a unique photographic style.
The result speaks for itself.
