Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

I'm fully invested in youth cultures in developing economies (with a current obsession with China), can navigate Social Media without a map, know the ins and outs of the hospitality industry, speak fluent French, English, and pretty damn good Chinese. Whatever I'm lacking in, I generally make up for with my abilities to learn quickly and relate to people of all backgrounds.

I consider myself well-traveled, but my list of places to go is never-ending. I ride bikes, love contemporary Chinese history, insist on wearing decade-old Clarks Desert Boots, and have loved graffiti and tattoos since I can remember. Wine is a passion, but I've spent months locked away brewing my own beers. Homemade pizzas are a specialty.

I'm a university graduate, but a student of the world. All things considered, I'm still a Junior, so it would be foolish of me to say I know where I want to be further down the road.
