Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Okay, so we have to write a bio for ourselves, pretending someone else is writing it, bragging about how good we are, or how much we love photography, or even our photographic inspirations such as Dorthea Lange or Annie Leibovitz. But that would be like every other photographer's bio and we don't want to be like everyone else. Fourteen years ago in an evening filled with beer and pizza, we decided to start our own company. That night we determined two things that were important to us to be successful in business... well maybe three. First, work as hard as we can, from arranging the shoot, and taking the photo, all the way to final delivery to the client on time. Second - have as much fun as possible, enjoy each day whether it is photographing an uptight CEO or photographing beautiful models and sipping lattes. Third, never take a photograph that you can't show your mother.

Basically, we love to shoot people, in their own environment. The perfect job for us is to go into a situation and come out with something great, flying by the seat of our pants, shooting almost journalistic style. Of course, some of our work is definitely more specific, such as executing concepts to the finest detail, controlling the lighting, working with models to achieve the appropriate look, scouting, preproduction etc. and whether it's for an ad campaign or an annual report, it doesn't matter because, well, that's a whole lot of fun too. The point is we love what we do and hope you do too.
