Awards and Accolades

Shojono Tomo literally translated means "Friend of the Girl Child". As her name suggests Shojono Tomo is an artist who has the soul of an eternal child. The adult with the soul of a child is a key theme running through her art works.

Shojono Tomo's art work is inspired by her imagination and view of the world.

This induces the creation of strong characters and use of colour that lend themselves very much to the mediums of media, particularly TV and fashion. Her work is always carefully planned and crafted to achieve the desired end result whilst retaining the integrity of her artistic vision.

An example of the commercial potential of Shojono Tomo's artistic vision and practice is her enormously successful "Enocdouter"?wearable art range that sells in Japan and internationally.

The serialisation in GOMES magazine, published by PARCO, of her column "Human Robot Sewing Machine" was a turning point in Shojono Tomo's life. This legendary magazine famously lifted subcultures to the mainstream in Japan. The exposure led to Shojono Tomo's regular column on the PLAYSTATION fan site in 1997 cementing her position as an important emerging artist and leading to further work in Film Animation, Fashion, Stage Art and Comic Book Illustration.

Shojono Tomo continues to work in the arena of Contemporary Art including her installation

"Kimutakunology" at IIP LINK FACTORY incorporating mobile phone technology to
