Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Tyson Smith has devoted his entire life to the creation of a giant robot, he calls Megator, which will protect the Earth from space monsters. Due to a huge void in the funding of the program, he spends most of his time illustrating. After graduation from Portland State University, he has illustrated for multitudes of magazines, newspapers, books, CDs, websites, corporate and advertising clients from all over the world. He received his first award in college, where he won PRINT Magazine's annual international student cover design competition. Tyson also illustrated the nationally distributed comic book, ODDJOB, for the past six years, and recently directed his first independent feature film (that's right, moving pictures), THE SEXY CHEF. His secret superpower gives him the ability to always select the correct size of Tupperware for leftovers.
