Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Tim Valentino is a freelance photographer and writer who has been specializing in news and event photography (particularly the social scene) in the greater Louisville area, as well as direct coverage of weddings, concerts, community and corporate happenings, festivals, galas, premiers, fashion shows and sporting events. His love for photography began at twelve years old after discovering the wonder of his late grandfather's fairly extensive camera kit. Currently the primary photographer for NFocus Magazine, Tim also photographs family and individual portraiture as well as professional headshots, promotional, and portfolio work in addition to his creative art pieces. The show that he is currently developing is his first of several planned exhibits and a series of books.

Previous Clientele

Tim's work has been extensively published and can be seen in such publications as The Voice-Tribune, Velocity, Southern Indiana Life and Times, The Courier-Journal, NV Magazine, Locator Magazine and Taekwondo Times. He is currently working on a set for Ebony Magazine. His work can also be seen in and on other media outlets, including Da Show, Music Central TV, TheMaxFM.com, WLRS.com, WDJX.com, and LouisvilleMojo.com. Tim's commercial clients include American Airlines, Avalon, White Oak, Clements Catering, Crushed Ice, Cellar Door Chocolates, Levy's Restaurants, and Centerplate. He has appeared on television shows such as "Secrets of Bluegrass Chefs" and WKET's "Louisville Life," and was recently a featured speaker at the Kentucky Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) Conference at the request of Centre College.
