Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae
Winston Fraser is a self-taught Canadian photographer whose work has been published widely both in North America and abroad.

Fraser's interest in photography started as a young boy while he was growing up on the family farm in Quebec (Canada) with his eleven brothers and sisters. At the age of ten he received his first camera, an inexpensive castoff, which required adhesive tape to keep it shut!

An active Christian layman, Winston recognizes that his success in photography is the result of a God-given ability to see and record the wonders of creation in a special way. Over the years he has held benefit exhibitions of his work to support Christian charitable organizations that serve the needs of the poor, the youth and the elderly.

Previous Clientele
Included among Fraser's publication credits are National Geographic, Walt Disney, National Wildlife Federation, Encyclopedia Britannica, Canadian Geographic and Kodak Encyclopedia of Photography.

A book of his photographs, HISTORIC SITES OF CANADA, was published by Bramley Books. Fraser was the major supplier of photos for National Geographic's CANADA Travel Guide.
